"Barnyard Jobs"

Everyone picks
what animal they'd be
their farm job
their silly farm name

Example:
Farmer Moo-Muffin
Captain Cluckles
Sir Oinks-a-Lot

Something squeaky like a mouse.

Something curly like a pig's tail.

Something golden like hay.

Something spotted like a cow.

Something shaped like an egg.

Something furry like a puppy.

Chicken Chatter!
Chickens are always talking!
They use dozens of different sounds
to communicate with one another.
Some calls tell their friends
they've found food, while others warn
the flock to watch out for danger.

BARNYARD BONANZA

Have a little fun along the way!

KINCARDINE — Moo've Over!

Once upon a time, wandering cows
could find themselves in Kincardine's very own cow pound. Getting your runaway bovine back cost 25¢ —
and the woman who milked
the inmates got to keep the milk!

Holy Cow!

Sometime between 1914 and 1928,
a clever local cow reportedly
unlatched a church door,
wandered inside and rang the bell!
She was missing for a day or two before
being discovered in the church basement.
Apparently, some cows just need to be herd.

A Mammoth Tooth in a Field
An Arran Township farmer dug up
a nine-inch woolly mammoth tooth.

It's now part of the Bruce County Museum collection.
So before Bruce County had barns,
tractors and cattle wandering around...
apparently it had mammoths.

An early history called it the strangest
craft ever to navigate the Saugeen.

They caught it, strapped cedar logs
to its sides and floated the boiler
all the way to Southampton.

started floating away.

Someone's solution was essentially:
plug the holes and chuck it in.
They rolled it into the river,
where it sank long enough for everyone to think they'd lost it —
then it popped back up and down the Saugeen River.

The Saugeen's Strangest Boat
Early settlers needed to move a huge iron boiler from Hanover

WHILE YOU ARE THERE....

WIARTON

Near Wiarton once stood The Corran,
a grand 17-room stone mansion surrounded
by orchards and gardens —
including more than 500 rose bushes.

At its height, the estate employed 15 servants and was described as almost a tiny village. It was also the first home in Bruce County
to have both a telephone and electricity.
The mansion itself is gone, but
the estate's story remains

LOCKERBY

Near Paisley, the quiet little park at Lockerby was once a busy milling settlement. It had both a sawmill and grist mill, and the sawmill later generated electricity for about 30 years. Today the former mill site is a park with a cairn
marking what was once there.

WALKERTON

Before Walkerton had a proper curling club,
people curled on Joseph Walker's mill pond
using wooden curling stones. During a thaw, rushing water swept the stones over the dam
and down the Saugeen River.
