LOCAL LEGEND

EXTRA! EXTRA!

Paisley has a long newspaper history! The first Paisley Advocate appeared in 1865, and the community newspaper name is still in use more than 160 years later.

Just outside of town

A Bridge to the Past! The historic railway trestle spans the Teeswater River. Dating back to the 1800s, this impressive landmark once carried trains through Bruce County.

Today, it's part of the Bruce County Rail Trail, offering beautiful views and a glimpse into the area's railway history.

Hidden beneath the bridge are remnants of rare wrought-iron Phoenix columns — an unusual piece of engineering history, with only a handful of surviving examples believed to remain in Canada!

LOCAL LEGEND

Did you know?

Paisley sits where two rivers meet — the Saugeen and the Teeswater!
Its picturesque waterways have helped shape the village since its earliest days

Paisley was once known as the Village of Bridges!

With two rivers winding through town, bridges were a necessity. At one time, the village reportedly had 11 bridges!
